New Episcopal Bishop To Be Elected Jan. 26

Standing Committee of New York Diocese Calls Special Convention of Parish and Mission Delegates

Dr. Stires Seems in Lead

Hopes of Dr. Manning, Dr. Slattery and Others, Defeated in 1919. Revived

The standing committee of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York announced yesterday through its president, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, that a special convention of the diocese will be held Wednesday morning, January 26, to elect a bishop to succeed the late Charles Sumner Burch.

The convention will be in Synod Hall at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, 110th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, and those voting will be clerical and lay delegates from each of the 297 parishes and missions.

The committee in its call stresses the need for prompt action, saying that the members of the committee are well aware that the late bishop of this diocese invariably set the welfare of the church above all considerations of personal sorrow. The call is signed by the Rev. Dr. Stires and George Zabriske, secretary of the committee.

There is great reluctance on the part of either clergy or laity to speculate as to the probable choice. For one thing, there is fear that any forecast would give the matter a political flavor thoroughly out of keeping with the church's customs and canons. On the other hand, those favoring a possible candidate do not wish to spoil his chances by placing him in the limelight of discussion.

Choice Usually from Diocese

It is not customary to choose anyone for the important post who is not clerically connected with the diocese. Both Bishops Greer and Burch held charges in the New York diocese, while Bishop Burch was suffragan bishop and therefore next in rank to the Bishop, there is no suffragan bishop at present, nor is there an archbishop. It is expected that any choice will naturally come from among clergy in charge of individual parishes or missions.

Of these, the Rev. Dr. Stires, as president of the standing committee, frequently referred to as the "Bishop's second choice," is the most prominent. As to his being a "high" or "low" churchman, in so far as these terms are used to distinguish the conservative and liberal elements in the church, there is such division of opinion.

When Bishop Burch was elected on September 17, 1919, Dr. Stires was his closest competitor. Three ballots were necessary to obtain a majority. The majority of the combined clerical and lay vote, or 207 out of the total 411 delegates voting. The vote and the candidate on the concluding ballot were as follows:

Standing on Last Ballot

Bishop Burch, 214½; Dr. Stires, 89½; Dr. William T. Manning, 49; Dr. Charles L. Slattery, 34½; the Rt. Rev. S. Thomas, 1; and the Rev. H. P. Nichols, 2.

The first ballot stood: For Bishop Burch, 187; Dr. Stires, 88½; Dr. Manning, 97; and Dr. Slattery, 39½. The second stood: Bishop Burch, 214½; Dr. Stires, 89; Dr. Manning, 61; and Dr. Slattery, 44½. After the third ballot, when it was seen that Bishop Burch had secured a majority of votes, Dr. Stires as runner-up moved that the election be made unanimous.

There is every indication that the unsuccessful candidates at the last convention will again be nominated and that the balloting will result in the choice of Dr. Stires, Dr. Manning or Dr. Slattery. In the event of a deadlock, Canon Howard C. Robinson, of the cathedral may be the choice.

Vacancy to Last for Months

Episcopal clergymen pointed out yesterday that it would be virtually impossible to elect and install a new bishop before the end of the year. The Sunday preceding Lent, or February 6, after the election of a bishop on January 26 it will be necessary for a majority of the bishops and all standing committees of the Protestant Episcopal dioceses of the country to give their assent before the president bishop can take an order for consecration of the new bishop. This, it was explained, usually requires several weeks. It is estimated that the see of the New York diocese will remain vacant for at least three months.

The qualifications for the high office are said to be peculiarly distinct from those attaching to other similar offices by reason of the size, numerous benevolent, missionary and other activities and the prestige that goes with the local rank. There are no rules, however, which specifically set forth what those qualifications shall be.

The affairs of the diocese, pending the election and consecration of a new bishop, are in the keeping of the standing committee and such members of the clergy and laity as this committee designates to carry on the work.

James McCarthy Dies; Veteran Newspaper Man

Said to Have Broken In More Reporters Than Any Other City Editor in U. S.

James McCarthy, well known New York newspaper man, died Sunday night at the Post-Graduate Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis.

For the last year Mr. McCarthy had been connected with the editorial staff of The Evening Telegram. Before that he was in charge of the Brooklyn bureau of The New York Herald. He was responsible for bringing in more reporters than any other city editor in the country.

He published a book on Journalism, "The Newspaper Worker," which is used in schools of journalism throughout the country. "The Rise of Dennis Harknough" was another of his books.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his sister, a brother. The body will be taken to Worcester, Mass., his birthplace, to-day for burial to-morrow morning.

Funeral Services Are Held For Col. Ashley W. Cole

Funeral services were held yesterday at Campbell Funeral Church last night for Colonel Ashley W. Cole, veteran newspaperman and former head of the New York State Railway Commission, who died at his home in West Pittston, Pa., Christmas Eve.

Colonel Cole, who was 50 years old, was a native of England. He came to this country when he was eight years old. After serving in the Civil War he joined the staff of The New York Herald, becoming city editor in 1868. In 1874 he joined the staff of The Times, but returned to the Herald in 1884. In 1887 he became city editor of The Press.

From there he went to the New York News Bureau as manager, later becoming secretary to Governor Morton. In 1890 he was appointed to the State Railroad Commission, serving as chairman during the terms of Governors Morton, Black and Roosevelt.
